deep into the labyrinths in the novels by Louise Welsh is the first book to focus on the novels of Louise Welsh, one of the most acclaimed and interesting narrative voices in contemporary Scottish literature. It explores the use of the image of the labyrinth as one of the sites for horror in classic gothic literature and its rewriting into a contemporary gothic labyrinth in 21st century Scotland and by extension in the European context that co-exists with various other queer and intertextual labyrinths that complement and complicate it. This book analyses how Louise Welsh's novels present different labyrinths that characters traverse and get lost in and by the same process with which readers also become engaged. In both cases, characters and readers discover that the labyrinthine understanding of reality becomes more real than any other official version of reality. Each chapter of the book explores particular examples of these labyrinths even though they are not linear; they tend to intermingle and intertwine.

In Remote Avant Garde, Jennifer Loureide Biddle models new and emergent desert Aboriginal aesthetics as an art of survival. Since 2007, Australian government policy has targeted remote Australian Aboriginal communities as at crisis level of delinquency and dysfunction. Biddle asks how emergent art responds to national emergency from the creation of locally hunted grass sculptures to biliterary acrylic witness paintings to stop motion animation, following directly from the unprecedented success of the Western Desert art movement. Contemporary Aboriginal artists harness traditions of experimentation to revivify at risk vernacular languages, maintain cultural heritage and ensure place-based practice of community initiative. Biddle shows how these new art forms demand serious and sustained attention to the dense complexities of sentient perception and the radical inseparability of art from life, taking shape on frontier boundaries and in zones of intercultural imperative. Remote Avant Garde presents Aboriginal art under occupation in Australia today.

For many weeks, the terrorist attacks of 9/11 dominated the newspapers which covered the consequences with an unprecedented immediateness. This study looks at diverging representations of 9/11 in US and German newspapers: New York Times, Washington Post, Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, Süddeutsche Zeitung, and explores effects on its possible readerships, the impact of the attacks, forms of heroism, the enactment of leadership, various demonstrations of patriotism and grief, as well as the textual and visual presentation of the attacks. These intermedial representations reaffirm or contest US American grand narratives while the German newspapers tend to focus on information and analysis. The US papers tend to strengthen shattered US American identity constructions. The study is based on nearly 2,000 newspaper articles and documents the wide scope of topics prevalent in the post-9/11 newspaper coverage.
